Written by Olaf Juhl in the 1970s and 1980s, "Reflections" is the autobiography and family history of Olaf Juhl, who grew up in Denmark and immigrated to the United States in 1921. Olaf was a businessman who bought and operated Olsen Fish Company in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He was made a knight of the Danish Flag for his work in "transplanting and promoting" his native Danish culture in America.

The book follows branches of the family to the 1600s, and also vividly describes the lives and struggles of Olaf and his family.

The original "Reflections," published by Olaf in 1984, was a paperback with a limited number of copies. Olaf's grandson Peter Juhl scanned and converted the paper copy to this Kindle edition to make this important piece of family history available to Olaf's descendants and others who might be interested.
