When it comes to farm animals, dogs are not only man's best friend but also the farmer's most trusted ally. Their loyalty and intelligence make them invaluable on the farm. From herding sheep to guarding the livestock, these diligent dogs are always by the farmer's side, ready to lend a helping paw. In return, they receive love, care, and a sense of purpose that comes from working alongside their human companions.

The Hardworking Horses

Another favorite among farm animals is the horse. These magnificent creatures have been an essential part of farming for centuries. With their immense strength and endurance, horses assist in various tasks, including plowing fields, pulling carts, and transporting goods. Beyond their practical usefulness, horses also establish a deep emotional connection with the farmer. Their graceful presence and gentle nature create moments of tranquility in the midst of a bustling farm life.

The Contented Cows

No farm is complete without a herd of cows. These gentle giants not only provide the farmer with a constant supply of dairy products and meat but also bring a sense of serenity to the countryside. There's something truly magical about watching them graze peacefully in lush green pastures, their rhythmic chewing a symphony of contentment. The farmer appreciates the relationship he shares with these creatures, respecting and caring for them, ensuring their well-being at all times.

The Mischievous Goats

While goats may be mischievous, their playful antics bring endless entertainment to the farm. Farmers enjoy the company of these clever creatures, notorious for their curious nature and ability to climb almost anything. With their exceptional agility, goats add a touch of adventure to the routine of daily tasks. From clearing weeds to providing milk and fiber, goats are versatile and delightful farm animals that capture the farmer's heart.

The Quirky Chickens

Chickens may be small in size, but their presence on the farm is far from insignificant. These feathery birds provide the farmer with fresh eggs and meat, filling the air with their melodious clucking. With their endearing quirks and vibrant plumage, chickens add a splash of color and liveliness to the farm. The farmer appreciates their steadfast work and their carefree enjoyment of the simple pleasures found in the everyday world of the farm.

The Enigmatic Sheep

Lastly, we cannot forget about the serene sheep that graze upon the rolling hills of the farm. Their soft wool provides warmth during cold winters, and their gentle demeanor brings a sense of tranquility to the farmer's daily life. Observing a flock of sheep peacefully grazing is not only a sight to behold but also a reminder of the harmonious relationship between humans and animals.

Farm animals, the farmer's favorite companions, bring joy, productivity, and a deep connection to the land. From the loyal dogs to the hardworking horses, the contented cows to the mischievous goats, the quirky chickens to the enigmatic sheep, each animal plays a crucial role on the farm, enriching the lives of those who care for them. These farm animals embody the essence of a simpler way of life, reminding us of the importance of sustainable farming and our responsibility to cherish and respect all living beings.

Your child is introduced to 14 farm animals through rhyme. Each rhyme tells us the sound and movement each animal makes, and your child answers the question, “Who am I?” On the next page is a picture of the animal, who says, “I am a COW” (or horse or pig, etc.). Then the animal says, “I am the farmer’s favorite!” In fact, each of the animals says, “I am the farmer’s favorite,” which draws laughs. At the end is a portrait gallery of all the animals, with the question, “Now that you’ve met us, who is your favorite?”

Your child will enjoy making the sounds and movements of the animals, and get satisfaction from identifying each animal. And, they’ll get a big laugh when each animal claims he is the farmer’s favorite. Finally, they’ll be challenged to choose their own farm animal favorite—if they can!

For kids ages 3-5.
