The Art of Hunters

Hunters are judged on their elegance, form, and smoothness in jumping fences. The discipline focuses on the horse's technique and grace rather than speed. It requires precision, consistency, and a strong connection between the rider and the horse.

Geoff Teall has a deep understanding of the nuances involved in training hunters. He emphasizes developing a horse's natural ability to jump and their overall look, movement, and carriage. His training methods involve meticulous attention to detail, ensuring that both horse and rider perform flawlessly in the show ring.

The Thrill of Jumpers

Jumpers, on the other hand, are judged based on their speed and ability to clear obstacles. It is a high-energy discipline that demands quick decision-making, agility, and bravery from both horse and rider.

Teall's expertise extends to jumper training as well. He upholds the importance of establishing a solid foundation for both horse and rider, focusing on their technical skills and understanding of course design. Teall's training methods ensure that his students can navigate complex jump combinations confidently, making split-second decisions with precision.

The Grace of Equitation

Equitation emphasizes the rider's form, position, and overall effectiveness in guiding the horse. It aims to showcase the rider's ability to communicate with the horse through subtle aids and achieve harmony in motion.

Geoff Teall's success in equitation stems from his belief in the importance of a solid foundation in classical riding principles. He emphasizes correct position, balance, and effective use of aids. Teall's training methods focus on developing riders who can communicate seamlessly with their horses, presenting a harmonious partnership in every ride.
