

The 80s: The Most 80s Hair Style For Your Best Look And Character

Step into a time capsule and travel back to the vibrant era of the 80s, where big hair ruled the fashion scene. The 80s were known for their bold and eccentric styles, and the hair was no exception. From teased and voluminous to brightly colored and full of hairspray, the 80s hairdos were iconic and continue to inspire fashion trends even today.

When it comes to the most iconic 80s hair style, the mullet takes the crown. The mullet hairstyle is characterized by shorter hair on the front and sides, while the back is left long and flowing. This asymmetrical style became a symbol of rebellion and non-conformity during the 80s and was embraced by both men and women.

One of the key elements of the mullet hairstyle was the height at the crown. To achieve this, people would tease their hair, creating a gravity-defying pouf that added an extra level of glam to their look. The bigger the hair, the better! Another popular trend was adding vibrant colors and streaks to the hair, creating a unique and eye-catching style.

The 80s also saw the rise of the permed hair trend. Perms were a popular way to achieve curly and voluminous hair, and everyone wanted to embrace their inner rockstar. The perm process involved using chemicals to alter the hair's structure, resulting in bouncy curls that were often styled into tight ringlets or teased for extra volume.

For those who preferred straight hair, the 80s had a solution for that too. The hair straightener, often referred to as a flat iron, became a must-have tool in every fashionista's arsenal. Sleek and straight hair was achieved by manually straightening each section, giving a polished and sophisticated look.

While the mullet, perm, and straight hair were popular choices, there were other hair trends that captured the essence of the 80s. The big, teased bangs were a staple of the era, with people often spending hours backcombing and spraying their bangs to achieve the desired height. This dramatic look added a touch of glamour and rebellion to any outfit.

The 80s were all about self-expression, and your hair played a vital role in defining your character. It wasn't uncommon to see people sporting unconventional accessories in their hair, such as bright scrunchies, giant bows, or even toy airplanes. These unique and playful additions added an extra layer of creativity to already eccentric hairstyles.

It's important to remember that the 80s were a time of experimentation and pushing boundaries. People were unafraid to try new styles, mix colors, and express their individuality through their hair. The key to achieving the perfect 80s hairdo lies in embracing the boldness and embracing the unique sense of style that defined the era.

, the 80s hair style was a bold and eclectic mix of mullets, perms, big bangs, and lots of hairspray. It was a decade that celebrated self-expression and individuality, with people using their hair as a canvas to showcase their unique character. Whether you want to channel your inner rockstar with a perm or embrace the rebellious spirit of the mullet, the 80s hairstyle is a timeless choice that will always make a statement.
