

The Nation Or The Ummah - Making a Choice for Unity

As humanity strives for progress and development, there comes a time when individuals are faced with a crucial decision – whether to prioritize their national identity or embrace the wider unity of the Ummah. While both concepts hold significance, it is essential to reflect upon the implications of this choice for a harmonious coexistence in a diverse world. In this article, we will explore the merits of both the nation and the Ummah, shedding light on the importance of unity and understanding amidst these deliberations.

Turkey's enthusiastic embrace of the Arab Spring set in motion a dynamic that fundamentally altered its relations with the United States, Russia, Qatar, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and Iran, and transformed Turkey from a soft power to a hard power in the tangled geopolitics of the Middle East. Birol Başkan and Ömer Taşpınar argue that the ruling Justice and Development Party's (AKP) Islamist background played a significant role in the country's decision to embrace the uprisings and the subsequent foreign policy direction the country has pursued. They demonstrate that religious ideology is endogenous to—shaping and in turn being shaped by—Turkey's various engagements in the Middle East. The Nation or the Ummah emphasizes that while Islamist religious ideology does not provide specific policy prescriptions, it does shape the way the ruling elite sees and interprets the context and the structural boundaries they operate within.
