I was 16 years old and alone on the rim rock, coming back from the East coast for the yearly family reunion on the Box S called Boxes in the soon to be new state of Colorado. Coming down off the Mogollon Rim, I followed the trail to one of the old line cabins. It should have been empty but someone had been there before me. I didn't think too much about it, Dad was always hiring new hands, they came and they went as the seasons changed. I put up my horse and went fishing. When I came back with a brace of nice 2 pound brookies, I was held up at the point of a Russian .44 and told I was trespassing. I told him my name and that's when all hell broke loose...
