The world is ending...or so it seems for junior tennis champion Ele O'Neill. How can she face life in a Montana ghost town after Seattle? No tennis courts, no friends, and she's stuck in a falling down old theatre with a rotten little brother and parents who are acting like aliens. And something's hiding in Ele's room, watching her every move, but no one will listen to her.

Steven Douglas is a nineteen-year-old cowboy with one little problem—he's been dead for over one hundred fifty years. He's supposed to protect the weird O'Neill family from unimaginable evil lurking in the theatre, but the modern world of tight jeans and outspoken young ladies—namely tall, blonde Ele O'Neill—has his full attention.

Though he seems kind of old-fashioned, Ele soon learns her ghost boyfriend Steven will brave her parents and hell itself to save her—and he'll have to!
