

Unleashing the Magic within: For Girls Witch School – A Magical Journey Awaits!

SALEM WITCHES INSTITUTE

The Salem Witches' Institute is located in wizarding Salem, Massachusetts and was founded in 1907. Originally, the school was located within a mausoleum in Howard Street Cemetery. However, in 1952, the school was moved to an abandoned estate. The school holds a very notable, yet friendly rivalry with Hogwarts, which has given the Salem Witches' Institute the nickname of "Hogwarts West".

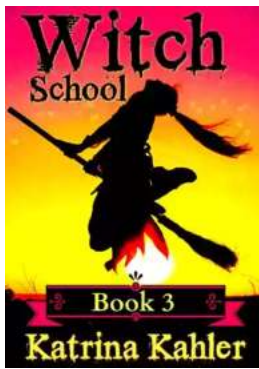

The four founders of the school, Alice Doughton, Emily Hollis, Rebecca Wateridge and Isabel Farrington decided to create a school specifically for the education of wizarding women in America, to teach them in safety and defiance. At the time it was founded, wizarding schools in America were open to men only, thus the Salem Witches' Institute became the first, all-girls school for witches.
